MEASURES NECESSARY FOR SUCCESS.

WHY QUESTIONS SHOULD BE ASKED AND EX-PLANATIONS DEMANDED.

The Tribune was by no means the only important, influential and conspicuous paper pub-Bebed in New-York yesterday which referred to the startling change of form in Hugh Penny between Saturday and Thursday and to the pecular riding of Perkins on Discount. Most of the really important and influential papers of the city referred to both of these subjects in their racing articles. It is certain that many persons who saw Hugh Penny's race last Saturday and his race on Thursday think that an explanation is needed from the owners of Hugh Penny, from his trainer and from his jockey. Many racing men think, also, that Perkins should give a full explanation of how he succeeded in getting inperfered with, and got into so many pockets when he rode Discount on Thursday, and that he should be called upon to furnish a complete account of his riding in that race. Some explanations of the riding or the condition of Arapahoe might also, perhaps, be in order. The Tribune's racing column does not claim to have any special knowlor any special evidence in these cases. It does not make charges against any one. But it does say that many racing men are deeply dissatisfied with the change of form in Hugh Penny's case, and think there ought to be an exfi also says that many racing men are keenly dissatisfied with the way in which they saw Perkins ride Discount and with the way in which Arapahoe was ridden. Now it may, perhaps, be easy for the owners, the trainers and the jockey of Hugh Penny to explain his armzing change of form if they are sked to do so. It may, perhaps, be easy for Perkins to explain his riding on Discount-but certainly every true friend of the turf, who dee racing continued in this State after ear, believes that such matters as these all the employes of the racing assoturf. The West is heartily welcome to all turf owners, trainers and jockeys who object of giving full, frank and candid explanations when asked to do so, or who get restive and resellous when proper questions are put. Such awarers, trainers and jockeys cannot go West too mickly or stay there too long for the benefit of long for the benefit of the Eastern turf rid of them, and their absence will It ought to be plain by this time to every one who is interested in the turf that racing in this state cannot be saved by any easy-going, good-natured and ienient policy. The voters will not support racing, and will not allow it to continue unless they are convinced that proper prevaultions are taken against trickery and against wrongdoing. It is the urgent duty of every one who desires to see the intri-prosper to give time, attention and hard work to the problem of rooting out 'rickery and wrongdoing.

A few newspaper writers frequently criticise in a flippant way the calling up of jockeys and the asking of questions. Such newspaper writer are enemies of the turf. Every newspaper writer press race—one mile. efforts on the part of the Jockey Club, all effort on the part of the racing associations, all efforts on the part of the racing stewards, all efforts of the part of race-track officials, and all efforts of the part of newspapers to suppress trickery an abuses and evils on the turf. Some of the news paper writers who have been quick to criticis and condemn inquiries and requests for expla nations on race tacks are running the risk of ruining the turf and of stopping racing in thi State altogether. Unless the important and in fluential newspapers will act in harmony is these matters, and will insist that vigorous work shall be done in removing reproach from racing and in suppressing abuses, it is as certain a anything can be that the turf in this State will soon come to a lisastrous end. Then, those newspaper writers who ridicule and criticis and attack race-track officials who ask question. and insist upon explanations may find it difficulto make a living. Newspaper writers of tha class are plainly an injury to the turf.

to make a living. Newspaper writers of that class are plainly an injury to the turf.

Of course, there are some turfmen who think that criticism of racetrack management and of peculiar performances on the turf ought to be done away with. These people take the view that it is not the husiness of the newspapers, whatever tricks may be practised by unscrupulous owners, trainers or jockeys, or whatever glaring errors may be nade by racetrack officials. Nevertheless, the careful student of the history of racing in all parts of this country cannot avoid the conclusion that dishonest or tricky racing cannot flourish in these days. The people in many States have set their faces as flints against racing of any kind, simply because they know that in past years improper practices have debased and degraded the sport on certain racetracks. The feeling of this sart is intensely strong in many states of the Unich. In very few States is racing now carried on. The sport to a lamentable extent has become unpopular and has been an object of hostile legislation and a target for suspicion and distrus, because certain racetrack officials in past years have been careless and indifferent and have not done their full duty in searching out an stopping evils and abuses. The lessans of the history of thoroughbred racing in searching out an stopping evils and abuses. The lessons of the hstory of thoroughbred racing in America stand att clearly and plainly. Any one who fails to tak warning by the disasters which have overtaken he racetracks in various parts of the country must be needless and reckless. Only by stern and recrous measures against all un-scrupulous persons connected in any way with the turf can racing be kept up in this State or in

DUNRAVEN'S LAST LETTER MADE PUBLIC. HE TRIES TO EXPLAIN THINGS AND SPEAKS OF PUBLIC OPINION CONCERNING HIM.

Lord Dunraven's answer to the letter sent him by the America's Cup Committee on September 17 was nade public yesterday. This letter was written at Newport on September 21 and was delivered to September 26. In the letter Lord Dunraven says:
You express surprise that I could have been in doubt as to whether Mr. Canfield and Mr. Busk were officially representing the committee. In my letter of the 13th I said: "I do not know whether Mr. Canfield and Mr. Busk were officially representing the committee. In my letter of the 13th I said: "I do not know whether Mr. Canfield and Mr. Busk were officially representing the committee when they came to see me at the Waldorf. I judged by the conversation that they were not, and I understood from them that the committee had not come to definite concusions upon my letter." I fear I am unable to add much to that. Mr. Busk assured me that if the third race was sailed the dates and times of starting any further races would not be published. I understood Mr. Canfield at first to demur, but afterward to acquiesce with Mr. Busk's opinion. I can only repeat what I said in my letter of the 13th, that I understood the verbal proposal made to me to be "that I should withdraw from my determination expressed in my letter of the 16th, and should sail the third, and possibly the final race, on the condition that sufficient room was secured at the start, and that in any further races my suggestion that the dates of races and times of salling should not be made public should be carried out." That understanding, had I agreed to it, would obviously not have been binding on the committee, as you now inform me that "the committee did not consider practicable your suggestion to keep secret the dates and times of starting any further races." Sentember 26. In the letter Lord Dunraven says:

After some remarks about the dates of sending and delivering various letters, Lord Dunraven concludes by saying:

As some misunderstanding appears to exist on the last of the public as to my motives in intrusting all etter of the loth to a third party, with instructions not to deliver it until the protest had been eard. I may repeat that I was abxlous to avoid the cossibility of any one supposing that in writing the etter I was in the slightest degree influenced by the fact that the protest had been odged or desired in any way to influence the gentlemen hearing that protest.

I do not quite see the object of calling my attention to public opinion; but as you allude to it. I may say that, though I have no idea whether my action in withdrawing is considered justifiable by anybody or everybody. I have not the slightest doubt upon that point.

I have endeavored to avoid controversial matters, and unless I can be of any further service to the committee I should be well content to consider this orrespondence closed.

game, which request, the committee insists, should be made by Yale.

Boston seems to be the storm centre. While the Harvard Athletic Committee undoubtedly occupies the most important position on the Harvard s.de, it is generally felt that results rest with Yale, as the committee contends stiffly that the first alivance toward a game must come from New-Haven. But the Yale men don't want to sive the newspapers an opportunity to say "Yale has crawled."

The prominent alumni in this city, having had conference after conference without avail, have practically withdrawn until the result of the Boston negotiations is announced.

It has been said that the question of differing rules, date and grounds would not interfere with arrangements. He that as it may, many think the two sets of rules, one in use at Cambridge, the other at New-Haven, will have a troublesome bearing on the case. Harvard will insist on having the game played on college grounds, but any neutral college grounds would probably be considered favorably now

The main question remains: Will Yale make the first move toward peace?

AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL. DR. CHEEK'S CLAIM AGAINST SIAM.

A DISPUTE OVER THE TERMS OF A CONTRACT RESULTS IN DIPLOMATIC COR-

Washington, Oct. 4 .- The claim of Dr. M. A heek against the Government of Siam, it is stated, stands where it was left by this Government last uly, when a note relative thereto was forwarde to the American Minister. Dr. Cheek, now dead, was an American citizen who originally went to Siam as a missionary doctor. He soon saw there vas a fine opportunity to make money in the teakwood business, a leading industry of Slam, and entered into a contract with the Government to work the forests in the interior. The American invested considerable of his own elephants and went to work. Soon after the first year the Slamese Government asserted that Dr. Cheek had not lived up to the contract, the dispute growing out of the failure to pay interest on money advanced by the Government. The interest clause of the contract provided for the payment of interest at a specific rate annually. The Siamese Government contended that this meant that interest should be paid at the end of the year, while Dr. Cheek held that it meant so much a year, payable at the end of the season. The forests being some distance from Bangkok, the logs were floated down streams. Lack of rains delayed the shipping of the logs, and when they finally reached the port for shipment, the Siamese Government, claiming the contract had been violated, selzed all the logs without process of law, sold them and refused to make an accounting. Dr. Cheek put in a claim of damages amounting to about $200,000. The matter was laid before this Government and some diplomatic correspondence followed, the last being a dispatch forwarded to our Minister in July, Sufficient time has not elapsed to enable a return thereon to reach the State Department. This dispatch was not a demand for settlement in any sense of the word, but directed the Minister to make a strong presentation of the justice of the claim and urge upon the Siamese Government a prompt and friendly settlement. Dr. Cheek died just about the time this note was forwarded. asserted that Dr. Cheek had not lived up to the The change of Wade from the half to the quarter is noteworthy. He has failed to make a good showing as a half-mile runner, and will go back to his original distance, the quarter. Richards is in fine condition. His attempt to run the three short races will be the feature of the day. If he takes all three, it will be one of the best feats ever performed by a Yale athlete. That Yale has no man entered as second string for the half-mile means that Yale concedes that contest to Cambridge. Cross has given up practice on the Yale eleven for two days to enter the hammer throw. Next Monday night at 9 o'clock a recep-tion will be given by the Harvard Club bridge Athletic team. To this reception, to be followed by a supper, the Yale team will be invited to meet the Cambridge men. At midnight the same night the Cambridge men, escorted by a Harvard committee, will go to Cambridge. Then, after being shown around, the Cambridge men will be present at a banquet to be given in their honor by the Harvard Club in Boston.

THE DISPOSITION OF MORA'S AWARD. Washington, Oct. 4.-It is understood that the share of the Mora award due Antonio Mora will not be held by the State Department until after all the entanglements growing out of the assignments of Nathaniel Paige, one of his attorneys, have been straightened out. The original agreement between Mr. Mora and his attorneys of record set forth that Mr. Mora and his attorneys of record set forth that 40 per cent should be set apart for all exp uses and attorneys' fees, the remaining 60 per cent being the net share of Mora himself. During the last twenty-five years, however, Mora has assigned in the neighborhood of $150,000 of his claim for living expenses. These assignments have all been filed with the Department, and as soon as they can be arranged Mora's share will be paid to him. Meanwhile two expert clerks are endeavoring to arrange systematically the numerous assignments growing out of the disputed proportion of the whole amount.

MR. DEPEW'S EXPERIENCE WITH CIGARS.

HE ONCE SMOKED FREELY, BUT NOW ONLY CHEWS A CIGAR END-A FRIEND'S STORY OF THE LATTER HABIT. Some paper recently said that Chauncey M. Depew was an artistic cigar smoker. Another paper took the matter up and declared that Mr. Depew never smoked. This clash of opinion led to the making of an inquiry of Mr. Depew if he did smoke. His reply corrroborated the statement made by both papers. He said: I never smoke now, but there was a time when I was an inveterate smoker. I used to smoke ten

I've smoke now, but there was a time when I was an inveterate smoker. I used to smoke ten or twelve cigars a day. I found that was too much, and so I had to quit. When a man begins to look after his health, he finds lots of points that he overlooked before. I found that smoking was one of the points I had overlooked. As for the time when I did smoke, I think that the newspaper which said I was an artistic smoker was about right. When I acquired the art I became a master of it. I do not intend to enter into a long dissertation on the merits of or denerits of nicotine, but I must say that it is bad for me just now, though I did enjoy it once.

"I can say, unlike some others, that I gave up the weed of my own volition. No young woman with a yearning to reclaim mankind from evil ways had the credit of this reforma ion. I still take a cigar in my mouth and chew at it, and that reminds me of a story told me by a friend while I was in the South recently. He had to give up smoking the same way that I did. He, like myself, loved to chew at a cigar, but found that in chewing the end of a cigar for a long time the saliva worked through, and this was unpleasant. He then remedied the matter by placing the clipped end in his mouth. One day some one came to his grown son and told him that he had better look after his father. The interested friend said 'I saw the old man down town so drunk that he was chewing the lighted end of his cigar.' That settled the matter for him. He now chews it straight or not at all."
